During Prohibition, in the year 1921, the interior finishing of the estate of William Robertson Coe and Standard Oil heiress Mai Rogers Coe, located at Coe Hall (1395 Planting Fields Road, Oyster Bay, NY 11771; 516-922-9200) between Oyster Bay and Locust Valley, had finally reached completion. Begun in the year 1918, one room among the 65 in this Tudor Revival was a priority for Mr. Coe: the den, whose design was included in the building envelope in 1919- just in time to have its bar- with wine cellar below- grandfathered in under the new Prohibition laws. You can see this beautiful, handcrafted bar and be led through servants living quarters, kitchen area, flower room and wine vaults in the Coe Family Exhibition Tour offered at Coe Hall twice daily at 12:30 and 2:30 pm.

Continue your tour of the home to include Planting Fields Arboretum (1395 Planting Fields Road, Oyster Bay, NY 11771; 516 922-9200, featuring gardens, greenhouses and rolling lawns; a perfect retreat for horticulturists, history & design enthusiasts and visitors looking for peace or state-of-the-art gardening solutions.

Sagamore Hill- President Teddy Roosevelt and family (from the collection of Sagamore Hill NHS).

An important stop in Oyster Bay is Sagamore Hill, (20 Sagamore Hill Road, Oyster Bay, NY 11771; 516-922-4271) the home of President Theodore Roosevelt from 1858 until his death in 1919. The Roosevelt home became the nation's White House during his presidency with many crucial decisions being made from the library. Much remains unchanged since 1910, the year after Roosevelt left the presidency and returned from his long safari in Africa. Visitors can see twenty-three rooms of the house. Sagamore Hill has 83 acres of forested areas, meadows, salt marsh providing home to many birds, small mammals, turtles, frogs and insects. The Sagamore Hill Nature Trail provides paths and a nature trail to walk with your family. Sagamore Hill still echoes with the turbulent life of this strenuous American and his happy family. Roosevelt has said "At Sagamore Hill we love a great many things- birds and trees and books, and all things beautiful; horses and rifles and children and hard work and the joy of life."

Sagamore Hill currently operates tours of the Roosevelt Home seven days a week from Memorial Day through Labor Day. Roosevelt's famous Rough Riders are said to have visited Finnegan's Restaurant and Tap Room (7 Wall Street, Huntington New York 11743; 631-423-9696) in Huntington.

The luxurious Inn at Fox Hollow (7755 Jericho Turnpike.
